I'm driving him mad

I am a mature 25-year-old with a good job and a stable home life. My mum and dad are easy-going and always allow me to do my own stuff. I should be happy but I am spoiling everything with my jealousy. My boyfriend and I have the most awful rows whenever he looks at other women. I even get angry if he watches girls on TV. He used to reassure me all the time which helped, but now he is so fed up with my constant moaning that he just storms out of the room. I know it is only natural for men to look at girls but I can't stand it. I am scared that I'll lose him if I don't control my feelings.
